You wake up with a fright. The memory of that awful scene still haunts you every night.

Okay

You go downstairs to get some breakfast. You call for your mother.

Mama!

Hannah!

You hear a flurry of footsteps, more than one set of feet for sure, which surprises you given the fact of your father's recent suicide and that no one else is in the house. Or so you thought.

You open the fridge and find a bottle of milk, it's one day past its expiry.

Chance it.

Grab some toast instead.
